A year in the life of the Trinity Hall community

Trinity Hall Review 2021/22

Academic Year 2021/22

TRINITY HALL
CAMBRIDGE
This year’s Trinity Hall Review tells the story of the College community’s re-emergence into spaces well-known and loved, with renewed energy and purpose.

Mirroring the rest of society, we once again convene in familiar places: lunch in the Dining Hall, breaks on Latham Lawn and conversations in Front Court. Sports clubs have returned to pitches, courts and rivers with liveliness and passion. Societies are once again flourishing, fostering interests in origami, literature, music and law to name a few. Our alumni events programme is at full strength with a fantastic selection of events coming up in Cambridge, across the UK and around the world.

You – our alumni, donors, friends and volunteers – help make the rich and varied life at Trinity Hall possible for so many students. Your support remains vital and your place in the Trinity Hall community is greatly valued.

After much change over the past few years, the Trinity Hall Review is a reminder of the positives, the progress and the exceptional sense of community here at Trinity Hall.

In late September 2021, as the new academic year approached, the perspex screen in the Porters’ Lodge was taken down; the indoor seating returned to the Aula Bar; and down at the boathouse, the old formation of rowing machines (‘ergos’) was reinstated. The College was shaking off the precautionary measures required of us during the main period of the COVID pandemic. After 15 months of heavy disruption, this academic year saw College life return to normal.

There has been tremendous vitality and energy in College this year as students have made up for lost time. In-person lectures have returned, the full range of sports and drama is available, the choir has returned to perform – upliftingly – in the Chapel, and formal dining – so important to our sense of community and the full student experience – has resumed. The Boat Club saw nine crews take to the river in Michaelmas term, while the women’s first boat won blades in May Bumps. The first June event in three years was a splendid success: a joyous celebration at the end of a year in which all academic, extracurricular and social activities were relished.

We celebrated the formal opening of the WongAvery Music Gallery by HRH the Duke of Gloucester. The Music Gallery is a state-of-the-art performance and rehearsal space for our musicians and the choir. Rising up out of a newly reconfigured Avery Court, it provides a visible symbol of the vibrant extracurricular life the College makes possible and of a fresh new start in the life of the College.

J B Priestley, reflecting on his time at Trinity Hall, thought the “unique value” of the ancient universities lay in the provision of “an environment in which thought itself is important”. Our commitment to fostering academic enquiry and excellence remains at the heart of all we do. In this spirit, I hosted a series of Vice-Master’s talks where distinguished guests joined me in conversation in front of an audience of students and Fellows in the relaxed setting of the Master’s Lodge Drawing Room at the heart of the College. We heard a sequence of compelling and inspiring reflections from writer, Professor Francis Spufford, (1982) medic and award-winning humanitarian, Dr Waheed Arian, (2003) hostage negotiator and former captive, Dr Terry Waite, and former advisor to Tony Blair, Baroness Sally Morgan. Our Fellows won an impressive array of prizes for their research, teaching and wider contributions to society. Among these successes, Dr Ingrid Schroder was elected Director of the Architectural Association (though she now moves on from her role here as Staff Fellow in Architecture). Dr Clare Jackson won the prestigious Wolfson Prize for History for her book Devil-Land.

The College published the Report for Publication from the Inquiry led by Gemma White KC into criticisms in a media article of the handling of allegations of sexual misconduct in 2018 and earlier. Alongside it, the College published a Response to Ms White KC’s findings and recommendations, outlining a programme of actions that we have taken to strengthen our processes and our student support. We are grateful to everyone who contributed to the Inquiry which has led to improvements to our structures and procedures for the good of the whole community.

Amongst other events, in June, we held a Garden Party in the Fellows’ Garden to celebrate the Platinum Jubilee, providing our students with a brief respite from their revision. Very many students turned out on a warm early-summer’s day and enjoyed a fine tea on the lawns that stretch from... the Master’s Lodge to the River Cam. Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II had a statutory role in the governance of the College, since the Crown is the official Visitor. In September we joined the rest of the nation in mourning her death and remembering with thanks her dutiful service to the United Kingdom, to its people and institutions, as well as to the Commonwealth and the world.

When my colleagues elected me as Vice-Master (initially, Acting Vice-Master) in March 2020, I did not expect to be at the helm of the College for two and a half years. It has been a weighty responsibility and a remarkable privilege to be able to lead this institution, even through a period of challenge and turbulence. I am grateful to all the Fellows (with particular thanks to the Bursar, Senior Tutor and Junior Bursar), to our dedicated staff, to successive generations of student leaders, and to the wider student community for their support throughout this period, and for making Trinity Hall such a stimulating place to live and work. We have recently sailed together through choppy waters, but I believe we have navigated them with courage, integrity and in good spirits, and have emerged into calmer seas.

As the new academic year begins, we look forward to Trinity Hall’s future under the guidance of our new Master, Ms Mary Hockaday. She joins us after a distinguished career in journalism at the BBC and with substantial leadership experience. She brings a strong vision for our future and, as an alumna, a longstanding affection for the College and an appreciation of its great potential to impact the world for good. We wish her every success and happiness in her Mastership.
After a series of extraordinary challenges to the College’s operations in the prior two years, principally due to disruption caused by the pandemic, the financial year 2021-22 delivered a welcome return to near normality. This was accompanied by a resurgence of academic, cultural, social and sporting activity in College, a powerful reminder of the fertile environment we seek to facilitate and which enables our community to flourish.

Full residence across all three terms delivered a significant improvement in levels of rental income. Our conferencing activity began the process of recovery after recording no meaningful income in 2020-21. This process will take several years as clients recover the confidence and means to organise external events, but their feedback shows that our market position remains strong.

Supply chain and labour shortages, compounded by the resurgence of inflation, were an abiding challenge to our service provision throughout the year. For much of the year we had to manage around significant staff shortages, although these have now somewhat abated. It is a tribute to the skills of our staff that any reduction in service levels arising from this nationwide problem were kept to a minimum. We expect upward pressure in employment, energy, food and other costs to be with us throughout the current financial year and beyond as “higher for longer” inflation persists.

The College purchases its energy in a consortium with many other colleges and thanks to our collective buying power is able to access competitive pricing and hedging facilities which have protected it from the worst of energy price inflation in the year under review. As these roll off, we do expect significant upward pressure in energy costs, despite continued hedging which keeps our base costs below the levels at which the recently announced Government support applies. In September 2022 the College published the report for publication summing up the key findings of the independent inquiry led by Gemma White KC which was referred to in last year’s report. Further information is available on the College website and elsewhere in this publication.

The College’s endowment was resilient.

Equity markets became highly adverse from January 2022 as monetary policy was tightened globally in the face of rampant inflation and Russia’s war in Ukraine exacerbated energy and food inflation and caused heightened geopolitical concern. A small number of investment properties were sold or leased in a very strong market in late 2021/early 2022 which generated highly satisfactory returns. At 30 June 2022 the endowment plus cash stood at £350m. Investment return was 4.0% (4.9% net of gearing).

The various drivers are reflected in our financial results for the year. The income statement is very significantly flattered by the crystallisation of a large gain deriving from a property transaction. Thus, the reported unrestricted surplus is £8.4m. The operating deficit (deducting these sale proceeds) is £1.1m, a significant improvement on last year’s deficit of £3.3m. Including restricted and endowment activity in the income and expenditure account this rises to a total deficit of £2.8m (2021 £4.0m), but the gain described above results in a total reported surplus of £6.7m. The balance sheet continues to be extremely robust.

“Specific focus will be applied to improving student provision, including anticipating changing needs as higher education evolves.”

Financial performance

Academic fees remained stable (at £2.8m) but income from residences, accommodation and catering increased by 89% to £3.8m (£2.0m). This was due to the improved receipts from a full year’s residence for students after the pandemic-related disruptions of the last two years and the beginnings of a revival in our conferencing and events business. Revenues from the latter grew to £461k from £34k.

Donations reached £4.4m vs £3.5m in the prior year. This includes a significant legacy. The generosity and support of our donors are profoundly appreciated.

Investment income grew by 7.5% to £6.2m (£5.7m). The rental tone in our property portfolio remained robust and we achieved some exceptional new lettings.

Balance sheet and endowment performance

Net assets grew by 2.8% to £368.0m (2021 £357.9m). This was driven by a significant increase in cash to £31.4m from £9.1m, deriving largely from the execution of transactions in the property portfolio which created significant value for the College. Property was thus very much the outstanding asset class in the year under review. It is not our policy to hold large amounts of cash for a long time. However, facing an environment of rising interest rates to combat high inflation and geopolitical tensions we did not find compelling opportunities to redeploy all these proceeds during the year. Some reinvestment has taken place in the property portfolio, mainly in sectors that corrected earlier in the cycle. We also have a framework for investment into equities as value emerges which we expect to execute over the course of the 2022-23 financial year. The College benefited from having a proportion of international investments (usually denominated in US dollars) which offered protection in the face of sterling weakness, illustrating the benefits of diversification. We made no significant changes to our manager line-up but are introducing a low-cost, low-carbon global index fund into our mix during this year. As with last year, our diversifying assets held up well and produced the steadily growing uncorrelated income streams for which we hold them.

Cambridge & Counties Bank has continued to perform very strongly, building a significant amount of value over the course of the year under review. This performance continues into the latter stages of 2022. The change in trajectory of interest rates is helpful to banks’ profitability. There is a good deal of concern over credit conditions in the coming period and the Board and Executive are planning conservatively but CCB approaches this period with an extremely strong balance sheet.

A comprehensive refurbishment of M&N staircases was the principal capital project this year. It is approaching completion and we expect student occupation during Michaelmas.

On a strategic estate management level, the College has commissioned a masterplanning exercise for the College estate. This exercise will take approximately a year and will look at our estate holistically and with two key priorities. Specific focus will be applied to improving student provision, including anticipating changing needs as higher education evolves. The other key imperative will be to provide an action plan to improve the College’s sustainability profile across all areas of our estate and operations.

Outlook

Inflation and supply chain pressures will continue to push up costs for us in the coming year and fee income will not compensate proportionately. However, our investments have once again proved that diversification can be the best source of resilience and while the current outlook is rather gloomy the College has a strong cash position to act as a buffer and to take advantage of emerging value. Meanwhile, our conference business is expected to continue to recover and record significant year-on-year growth.

Our community currently displays huge positive energy despite this challenging environment. Mary Hockaday’s arrival as Master heralds an exciting and stimulating period for the College after recent challenges. The masterplanning project will provide an excellent framework for developing the next stage of our estate and sustainability strategy and I look forward to reporting back on the conclusions next year.
As the immediate dislocation of the coronavirus pandemic receded, everyone in the Tutorial Office hoped that 2021/22 would simply see a return to a semblance of normality. ‘Semblance’ isn’t a commonly used noun except in relation to notions of normality and, just as defining ‘normality’ can be elusive, semblances often turn out to be specious. Looking back, the past year did restore many regular rhythms of College life: in-person supervisions, classes and seminars, dining in Hall, graduation ceremonies, residential taster events for prospective applicants and a brilliant June Event. But it was also a ‘new normal’, with opportunities for change and innovation.

For a start, all new undergraduate students came into residence five days earlier than previously for a week of Induction activities. With admissions interviews having been conducted remotely, and Open Days cancelled during the pandemic, there had been little opportunity for prospective students to visit Cambridge. Hence, we hoped to create some time for new students to get to know the College, the city and one another and avoid traditional tendencies to cram all induction information into a frenzied 48 hours before lectures start. Part-funded by a generous philanthropic donation from Graham Ross Russell (1953), Induction Week involved colleagues and external professional facilitators providing sessions and activities on subjects ranging from personal development, time management in eight-week terms, consent and healthy relationships to financial budgeting, smart social media and how to get the most out of supervisions, alongside tours of the Jerwood Library and College Boathouse, JCR-led scavenger hunts and a dynamic alumni-led panel on post-university career paths. Following a detailed review, a modified version of Induction Week was repeated in September 2022 with, for example, new bystander intervention training provided by the local sexual health charity, Dhiverse.

Once the academic year started, there was, thankfully, relatively little pandemic-related disruption. The majority of lectures were still recorded and uploaded for students to watch online, but most supervisions and seminars took place in person and extra-curricular talks, conferences and events restarted.

The May Bumps in 2022 saw the first women’s boat secure blades for the first time since 1983, while ten crews raced in the Fairbairn Cup at the end of the Michaelmas term. Rosa Millard (2020) was part of the record-breaking lightweight women’s Boat Race crew, Camila Cimadamore-Werthein (2018) was recognised for her Outstanding Contribution to University Sport award through involvement with the University’s Polo Club, while the University’s Club of the Year was the Ice Hockey Club, of which Ella Ykema (2018) is Treasurer. The Mirage-themed June Event was a sell-out success and, shortly afterwards, the College welcomed over 3,000 visitors through its gates on the University’s annual Open Days.

Looking to the future, the search for a new Master created exciting opportunities for students, operational staff and Fellows to think anew about the future direction of Trinity Hall as it approaches the 675th anniversary of its founding in 2025. Mary Hockaday’s election as the College’s first female Master generated infectious optimism while, in another exciting innovation, Lisa Dery was appointed as the College’s first Head of Wellbeing from September 2022. Lisa brings a wealth of experience and expertise from her previous role as Head of the Student Advice Service and her appointment underscores the enhanced importance of promoting wellbeing and welfare throughout the Trinity Hall community. To this end, I remain deeply grateful for the contributions of the College Nurse, Mental Health Practitioner and Counsellor, as well as the unstinting support provided by the College’s Tutors, Tutorial Office staff and JCR and MCR committee members.
The Trinity Hall MCR has had another outstanding year, as we returned – slowly – over the academic year to a more normal existence. Although numbers in formal dinners had to be capped, in part due to social distancing and in part due to supply chain and staffing issues, the MCR executive did a phenomenal job of organising a range of alternative events so that students felt supported. As always, I am profoundly grateful for the support we receive from Clare Kerr, the postgraduate administrator in the Tutorial Office. Without Clare, nothing would be possible, and her steady calm and patience are a daily blessing.

This year, the Deputy Postgraduate Tutor, Professor Ramji Venkataramanan, was on academic leave for Lent and Easter terms, and Dr Anton Enright, from the Department of Pathology, stepped in. Going forward, to better support the postgraduate community, both Ramji and Anton will serve as Deputy Postgraduate Tutors. Together, the three of us look forward to working with the MCR over the coming academic year.

In the 2021/22 academic year, the MCR had 264 members, with 96 new students joining the College. In addition, the MCR has 37 Postdoctoral Research Associates (PDRAs), scholars who are at the beginning of their academic careers, and who offer mentorship and support for postgraduate students. As always, we are eternally grateful to College alumni who support our postgraduate students; Trinity Hall enjoys the envious position of being one of the colleges with the most generous support for postgraduate students, through studentships and research grants. For the 2021/22 academic year, we awarded four full studentships and matched funds for a further 14 postgraduate students.

The story of this past academic year has been about how to return to normal while understanding and respecting the guidance that remains in place. Waves of COVID came throughout the year and the MCR community reminded us of their resilience and resolve through the best of times, requiring focus and determination. Never more so than over the last few academic years.

Our MCR President this year, Chris Haggard (2020), has been outstanding. It never ceases to amaze me how students like Chris, who is pursuing a PhD in Chemistry, can balance their academic research with the commitment they show to the MCR community. We also commend the leadership of our cohort of PDRAs, Dr Terry Chien-Jen Yang and Dr Stuart Linley, who continue to organise many events to support the PDRAs within College. Both the MCR community and the PDRAs felt supported through a range of activities designed to build community spirit.

We remain grateful for the phenomenal support we receive from our outstanding, friendly tutorial team. In addition to Clare Kerr, who has been a steady presence and helpful hand through many challenges over the past year; we thank Rosie Ince (Tutorial Registrar), Saskia Burton and Irina Atkinson (Tutorial Administrators), and Julie Powley (Tutorial Office Manager). We also thank Vicky Mills (Admissions Officer) and Dr Marcus Tomalin (Admissions Tutor) who has helped us recruit and admit yet another strong cohort into the MCR.

We look forward to a bright year ahead, with the opportunity to celebrate, work with, and dine with our postgraduate community. We thank our alumni again for their tremendous support for the MCR.
The Director of Admissions’ Report

Speaking to prospective applicants face-to-face

This year we have started to return to something approaching normality in our admissions-related activities. Crucially, we have been able to reintroduce some of the events we were forced to cancel during the worst phases of the coronavirus pandemic. Therefore, we have visited several schools, colleges, and academies in our Link Area to speak to potential applicants, their teachers, parents and supporters; we have accommodated residential groups so that they can experience student life in Cambridge; and, in the heat of July we welcomed more than 3,000 visitors to the College during our two main Open Days.

There is no adequate ‘virtual’ substitute for speaking to prospective applicants face-to-face and showing them around the College – especially when the sun is shining, and the place looks so beautiful! Nonetheless, we have continued to offer extensive online provision too, and the Virtual Tour has already been accessed thousands of times since it went live in December 2021. So, if you have not yet wandered around Central Site in the comfort of your own home, do please try it out for yourself: trinhall.cam.ac.uk/virtual-tour.

In June our Schools and Colleges Liaison Officer, Frankie Enticknap, left us, but her superb successor, Rosie Good, is already in post. You can follow Rosie’s regular Instagram (@trinhall_outreach) and Twitter (@TrinityHall_SLO) posts if you want to keep up to date with our many activities. The eagle-eyed amongst you may have noticed a slight change in the job title. The word ‘Colleges’ has been added to make it even clearer that, when we engage in Widening Participation initiatives, we interact with the full range of school types in the UK – eg, comprehensive schools, sixth form colleges, further education and tertiary colleges, academies and so on.

We continue to make offers to applicants based on their academic ability and potential, and we were delighted to welcome 106 new students to Trinity Hall in October 2022. 72.9% of them are from the maintained sector, while 16.9% have an Indices of Multiple Deprivation (IMD) flag. IMD attempts to measure relative social deprivation using indicators such as income, crime rates and healthcare provision, and applicants to Cambridge are flagged if they come from an area that is ranked in the bottom 40% of their region. As a College, we are determined to continue providing the financial, pastoral and logistical support all our students need if they are to thrive while studying with us.

It is important that potential applicants are aware of the support we offer. To take just one example, four of our new students have been in local authority care, and therefore may require bespoke arrangements from time to time since the ancient convention of ‘going down’ for the vacations is not necessarily possible for students who have no home to go to. In addition to the new undergraduates, we are also welcoming more than 70 new postgraduates from October 2022 onwards; and, due largely to the generosity of our alumni, we have been able to support 22 of these students financially (either fully or in part).

Hopefully this short summary gives you some idea of what we have been up to this year. As ever, if you are interested in supporting our work in any way, please do not hesitate to contact us on admissions@trinhall.cam.ac.uk.
It has been wonderful to see people back in person and travel to meet alumni overseas.

You are enabling research and transforming the lives of our students.

Alumni Relations Report
The last year has seen a return to in-person alumni events and we have managed to catch up on all the reunions missed because of the pandemic. We have been delighted to welcome more than 980 alumni back for events in College over the past 12 months, including reunions for 1973-76, 2003-4, 1972, 1997, 2012, the MA for 2013 and the Aula Club dinner.

The THA Cambridge dinner continues to be popular. We travelled to Edinburgh in November for a THA dinner in Riddle’s Court, with a talk by Dr Clare Jackson, and we held a THA dinner in the Library of Birmingham, with a talk from Dr Abigail Rokison-Woodall (2003) in the Shakespeare Memorial Room.

When restrictions began to lift in April, the Vice-Master and I travelled to New York and Washington for alumni receptions and in July we held events in Chicago and San Francisco. Thank you to the alumni for help with hosting those events. Over the summer, the Vice-Master and Senior Tutor held receptions in Sydney and Singapore.

In July, Wychfield was transformed with bouncy castles, trampolines and marquees filled with activities for our third Family Day. The next month, Central Site was transformed with the addition of sculptures by Stephen Cox RA. Encounters in Stone will be in place until June 2023 and is open to the public to view.

It has been wonderful to see people back in person and travel to meet alumni overseas, but we also continued our online provision. Our first hybrid event in February was held jointly with the Centre for Geopolitics, featuring Andrew Marr (1977) in conversation with Dr Clare Jackson about her new award-winning book Devil-Land. Our annual social innovation lecture with Cambridge Social Ventures at the Judge Business School, given by Johanna Mair, was also live-streamed. We were also able to offer a hybrid AGM for the THA for the first time.

To mark COP26, alumni and Fellows were involved in webinars and panel discussions around different aspects of the theme of climate change. Recordings of all these events are available on our YouTube channel: youtube.com/c/trinityhallcambridge

LinkHall continues to be a helpful tool underpinning our careers network. Our number of mentoring relationships doubled this year, and more and more alumni are joining saying they are willing to offer careers advice. Thanks to alumni we were also able to host a range of PaTHways careers events in College and online for our students.

We are very grateful to everyone who responded to our alumni survey which helps us to continually improve our alumni relations programme. We always welcome any feedback you may have.

We look forward to seeing you back in College again soon.

Development Report
We are immensely grateful for all the support our alumni and friends have shown over the past year, which is having a huge impact on the College and our members. We raised £3,482,383 during the 2021/22 financial year.

With a return to in-person events, we were delighted to host the Commemoration of Benefactors service and dinner in College rather than online; the Nathanael Lloyd Society dinner in April to thank those who have remembered the College in their Will; and our Supporters’ Garden Party.

In June we were honoured to have HRH The Duke of Gloucester KG GCVO officially open the WongAvery Music Gallery. The ceremony had been postponed because of the pandemic but we were pleased to invite the donors and their guests to College to commemorate the new building.

Our Giving Day, Give 2geTHer, took place over 36 hours in December 2021 and raised £256,000 from 485 donors. The funds raised are supporting undergraduates and postgraduates facing financial difficulty.

We were also delighted to have 13 students together in a calling room to speak with alumni as part of our 18th Telephone Campaign. More than 600 conversations took place and £295,252 was raised.

£2,086,294 was received for the Trinity Hall Fund from 1,339 donors and will be used to:

• provide more bursary support for around one third more undergraduates
• refurbish student bedrooms on M and N on Central Site to make them more energy efficient and more attractive to applicants
• offer more Masters and PhD studentships so postgraduates can come to Trinity Hall for their research
• grant additional funding to PhD students entering a 10th term so they don’t have to worry about finances whilst writing up
• provide more support for students from under-represented ethnic communities
• support student art projects during a year-long festival
• offer choral scholarships to students in financial need so they can fully participate in the choir
• fund additional sports equipment at Wychfield so more people can take part in outdoor exercise
• support a new Head of Wellbeing role in College alongside initiatives to support mental health
• contribute towards accommodation costs for those undertaking research placements during the summer.

We would also like to take this opportunity to recognise everyone who remembers the College in their Will. We currently have pledges of £18.8 million from over 230 members.

Thank you to everyone who has supported the College – you are enabling research and transforming the lives of our students.

“We have appointed an Environmental Consultant as we look to self-generate a good proportion of our energy needs.”

when College was closed. As we anticipated, the larger construction projects – in our case the refurbishment of M and N staircase – have suffered similar issues as the College has operationally. Difficulty in obtaining materials within agreed timescales and a lack of experience and qualified tradespeople have extended the programme considerably. The team has also refurbished C staircase for new Fellows; prepared the Master's Lodge for our new Master; prepared the grounds to exhibit Encounters in Stone, a year-long exhibition of works by artist Stephen Cox RA; and updated the JCR.

We have commissioned Haworth Tomkins to undertake a Masterplanning exercise of all three of our sites. They began their work at the beginning of summer 2022 and, during autumn 2022, began consulting with various stakeholders to map out the needs and requirements of the College over the next 20 years. With Haworth Tomkins we have also appointed an Environmental Consultant to advise us, alongside the Masterplan, on how we move away from gas and look to self-generate a good proportion of our energy needs so we are less dependent on the grid and therefore external pricing. The summer also showed how susceptible we are to seasonal changes. The lack of rainfall over July and August meant our normally beautiful green lawns turned brown and dusty, highlighting a requirement to harvest and store rainfall.

We are all looking forward to working with a number of new key individuals who have recently taken up posts including the Master, Acting Senior Tutor, Head of Wellbeing and Director of HR as noted. Trinity Hall remains in a good position to provide for our students, Fellows and staff.
Over the past year, we have been delighted to welcome the return of most of our conference and catering services. It has been a pleasure to see our students, Fellows and staff meeting face-to-face for lunches and dinners and taking such enjoyment in the social element of College life which really contributes to the happiness and wellbeing of all.

The department has, however, faced its fair share of challenges. Sadly, we have not been immune to nationwide staff shortages in the hospitality industry and have also felt the force of food-chain supply and delivery issues. This has meant that we, along with the majority of the Cambridge colleges, have adapted by focusing on our catering provision for current members, particularly during term, and limiting the overall number of external conferences, dinners and events. This allowed us to continue with something akin to “business as usual” for the majority of our day-to-day College lunches and dinners. I would like to wholeheartedly thank our kitchen, coffee shop and buttery teams for pulling together and adapting so effectively to these changes.

Despite the challenges faced over the past year, we have been pleased to host some of the College’s events that were postponed due to lockdown, including the 2020 Undergraduate Matriculation Dinner at the start of Michaelmas 2021. We have also welcomed alumni back to College for regular and postponed reunions and anniversaries as well as weddings, dinners and other private and business-related events.

It was also a summer of delayed weddings. From Fellows and alumni to those wishing to celebrate in the beautiful surroundings of Trinity Hall, each wedding was unique and memorable and often offered the first chance to gather again with friends and family.

The landscape of events has undoubtedly changed as a result of the pandemic. Our Conference and Events team has adapted to the increasing demand for hybrid events (those with in-person and virtual attendees). A number of internal meetings and lectures have been conducted as hybrid events as well as those for external clients such as AstraZeneca. We also live streamed the larger-than-normal 2021 Admission of Fellows and Scholars from the Lecture Theatre as it would have proved rather too cosy for all attending in the Chapel.

Our menus are including more and more plant-based dishes which are proving increasingly popular. And, in line with our environmental policy, we continue to focus on seasonal and sustainable produce from local suppliers wherever possible. We are also working closely with Cambridge Sustainable Food to introduce additional ways to limit food waste, support recycling and reduce power consumption.

With challenging times ahead, we are looking closely at our future pricing strategy. We will no doubt need to adapt some pricing for events but please be assured that our commitment to quality and customer care will continue to be at the forefront of everything that we do.

As always, we look forward to welcoming our alumni back to College soon and wish everyone a happy and healthy year ahead.
Books bring people together

The Jerwood Library
Buildings are nothing without people inside them, so we were delighted to see a return to a Library bustling with students who could use it without any access restrictions. Staff took part in the College’s inaugural Induction Week for Trinity Hall’s first years, giving the first physical library tours in two years. And we made a gradual but determined resumption of pre-pandemic services including a return to 24-hour opening in time for students to revise for their exams.

But things have also changed due to the pandemic, and we continue to fine-tune adaptations to our services to meet evolving student needs. One impact has been improved accessibility for all: students are no longer charged for the late return of books; and we continue to provide books and resources through our Request and Collect and book scanning services. There has also been a huge expansion in digital resources across the University.

The Library not only provides academic support, but also contributes to student wellbeing. Studies have shown the importance of reading for mental health, and we have recently developed a General Fiction collection to support reading for pleasure. To improve the range of books in this collection we held an event around Valentine’s (and Library Lovers’ Day) where the College community was asked to nominate one book they love. The week culminated in an enthusiastic vote to decide on Trinity Hall’s favourite book.

We were amazed by the eclectic mix of books that Trinity Hall members love – everything from Booker Prize winners to alumni were given a tour of the Library as part of their anniversary events, and current English and History students appreciated the rare opportunity to see a selection of our precious manuscripts and early printed books. It was described by one of them as the highlight of the term.

We are also delighted to announce that we have recently completed the five-year project to digitise all 25 of Trinity Hall’s medieval manuscripts, as well as some early documents from the College Archive. These books and documents represent a unique part of our cultural heritage and are important records of the history of the College. They include treasures such as our oldest manuscript, The Life of St Martin of Tours, which was written just after the Norman Conquest; a lavish illuminated manuscript made for King Richard II; and a letter written by Charles Dickens to his son, who studied Law at Trinity Hall.

These digitised books and manuscripts are hosted on the Cambridge Digital Library and can be freely viewed by anyone, anywhere in the world. Through this project, we have increased the visibility of our manuscripts, and provided new opportunities for researching our special collections. We hope to continue by digitising a selection of post-medieval and early printed books in the future. As always, we are grateful to our alumni for making these projects possible.

The Old Library
The Old Library is one of the hidden gems of Cambridge and it was fantastic once again to be able to share this unique historic building and its collection with visitors. Returning

Mr Tickle. But the winner was Orwell’s dystopian novel 1984, beating strong competition from The Hobbit, and Pride and Prejudice. The majority of the nominated books were purchased for the Library, and the collection has been extremely popular with students. More importantly, it was wonderful to see the way that books – and the Library – can bring people together.

The Librarian’s Report
Twice in the past 12 months, the extraordinary power of liturgy has stopped me in my tracks.

The first occasion was on 13 March. All through the Lent term, we had been praying for Ukraine and for all those working to avert all-out war in a country that had lived with conflict for years. On 24 February, Russia invaded. Many in College were directly affected, not least Russian and Ukrainian students and staff. One Fellow travelled to Poland to meet Ukrainian relatives and bring them to safety. Members of the choir – a close-knit group in which lasting friendships are formed – were acutely conscious that one of their members was Ukrainian. It was an easy decision, then, to advertise to the College that the service planned for the end of term would take an offertory for the Red Cross’s work in Ukraine. The plan had always been for the choir to sing Gabriel Fauré’s Requiem, Op. 48; but as the choir began the Introit and Kyrie, praying for peace for the dead and for mercy, feelings and longings that had seemed for days impossible to articulate, were put into words.

The second occasion was on 9 September when we held a short, impromptu service following the death of Queen Elizabeth, attended largely by College staff, in which we prayed ‘Lord, now lettest thou thy servant depart in peace, according to thy word’. When something important happens – a death, a war, a marriage, the gift of new life – good liturgy gathers thoughts, form and expresses them, in a way that helps those present to feel something worthwhile has taken place.

Of course, there were other such moments. In May we baptised Alec Owen. During the summer months there were marriages and marriage blessings for Fellows, postgraduate students and alumni. In July, a memorial service for John Nurser, a former Dean of Trinity Hall, was held. On Remembrance Sunday, a memorable sermon by the Revd Nigel Uden of Downing Place United Reformed Church in Cambridge and Maurice Green’s powerful anthem Lord, let me know mine end. The preacher at the Commemoration of Benefactors’ service in February was the Regius Professor of Divinity, David Fergusson FBA FRSE.

Throughout the year, Rachel Sheppard (2021) and Rebecca Mathen (2021) served on attachment from their respective theological colleges, helping us, with our excellent team of student sacristans, to rebuild after the previous COVID-disrupted year. Erin Cox (2019) has been an outstanding Senior Organ Scholar who has also been a fixed point amid three turbulent years.

In addition to my chapel duties, my role as a Director of Studies, and my lecturing and supervising in the University, I have for the first time in 2021/22 served as a Tutor. Each of these roles has been fulfilling. Yet it has been good to be reminded that, in more ways than one, the worshipping life of the College Chapel remains a vital focal point for the College’s life and work.

“A close-knit group in which lasting friendships are formed.”
The completion of the stunning WongAvery Music Gallery in the summer of 2021 represented a hugely important moment for Trinity Hall and, in particular, for the musical life of the College. Following the long, eerie silence caused by the lockdowns and safety restrictions associated with the COVID pandemic, this fantastic new facility has provided a magnificent focus for an exciting and celebratory renaissance of musical activity in College throughout the past academic year.

From a design and acoustical standpoint, the building has proven an enormous success and has been greeted with the utmost enthusiasm by current members of our College community, alumni and visiting professional musicians alike. The environmental stability achieved within the space has proved hugely beneficial to the health of the College’s celebrated harpsichord and the building also houses a superb new Schimmel grand piano and provides a much-needed, future-proofed home for the Chapel choir music library. Further benefits of this exciting building project have been the aesthetic transformation of Avery Court as a whole and the increased visibility of music-making in the heart of the College. But, above all, the College now has – for the first time in its history – a first-class space for choral, vocal and instrumental rehearsals and a uniquely intimate destination venue for small-scale ‘in the round’ musical performances and masterclasses.

The excitement generated by the WongAvery Music Gallery amongst the student body has been abundantly clear. The space has been in huge demand for individual instrumental practice and ensemble rehearsals, and it has become the new home of the Trinity Hall Music Society which has presented a terrific weekly series of student recitals each Wednesday throughout the academic year.

The Chapel choir, for whom the WongAvery Music Gallery has become the principal rehearsal venue, has this past year begun the first phase of a period of rebuilding work, following the devastating loss of training and experience suffered as a result of the pandemic. Despite some tremendously inspiring achievements during 2020/21 – most notably the beautiful video-recorded Advent Carol Service in Michaelmas term 2020 – the choir mourned the loss of so very many live events and it has been enormously gratifying for all of us to return to our regular schedule of services in the College Chapel. Particular highlights of the past year have included a fine Service of Nine Lessons and Carols, a memorable performance of Fauré’s Requiem and the long-awaited return of the choir’s popular lunchtime concert at the end of the Easter term. And, in October 2021, it was tremendous to see, at long last, the hugely-anticipated release of the choir’s most recent recording, an album of Jacobean music with the celebrated consort Newe Vialles, which had been recorded prior to the pandemic.

Throughout the year, the choir has worked with real dedication, and they should be immensely proud of their admirable achievements. They look forward to the year ahead and, hopefully, to the return of a foreign tour!

There was a tentatively hopeful mood among the JCR at the start of this academic year, after two year-groups had confronted and come through a period of disruption that now seems unthinkable. It was with tempered excitement, then, that last year’s formidable JCR committee introduced our freshers to Cambridge, leading excursions to clubs we ourselves were navigating for the first time.

It was in this spirit of joint discovery that the year continued, as first and second years celebrated matriculation together in the reopened Hall and we worked elbow to elbow in the Jerwood Library. We were thrilled to see Central Site humming with life and becoming a social hub once more with packed formals, College bops and sunny afternoons on Latham Lawn. Our beloved wall by the Cam is once again more than a COVID-safe lunch spot! The College also played host to the hugely successful, student-run JCR Garden Party and latterly the June Event, a fantastic night to end May Week and welcome back alumni who missed out in years past.

College life in all its forms has transitioned out of the confines of Zoom grids and back into living, breathing events. Culture has gone from strength to strength with the Trinity Hall-led Blue Screen Film Society hosting screenings, a series of excellent and varied recitals by the Trinity Hall Music Society, and a dinner for the refounded literary society, the Hesperides. Tit Hall FemFo has staged a notable comeback, hosting engaging, informal panels on intersectional themes. College sport is back in full swing, with Trinity Hall’s Football Club and Cricket Club playing at Wychfield, and an impressive performance from the Boat Club under Izzy Nicholl (2019) and Sam Riley (2019), particularly W1’s success in achieving blades in the May Bumps.

After a year of unbridled socialising, one of the most heartening aspects of life in College was the swift integration of the 2021 cohort. The connection many already feel to the College was evidenced by the energy of the first years on the JCR committee, who took to their roles with fervour: from Ryan’s continued pressure on the College on environmental concerns; to Muhib and Safy on BME and access respectively; Lily, Jamie and Nick’s themed bops; and Nancy and Shihab’s buzzing welfare teas every Sunday. We are committed to continuing to make Trinity Hall as diverse, welcoming and accessible as it can be.

Members of the JCR also had the important privilege of being involved in the selection of the new Master and the new Head of Wellbeing in Easter term, meeting candidates to put across students’ priorities and feeding back to College governance. Mental health provision at the University is an urgent priority, and the creation of the Head of Wellbeing position is a crucial and innovative step that we are grateful the College has taken.

We are very excited about the appointment of Mary Hockaday as Master, which signals the final stage in the return of what might be considered regular life at Trinity Hall. But at the same time, we are, and must remain, a changed College; it is all of our duty to remember and learn from the College’s recent past in order to usher in a bright future for the community. The JCR wish nothing less for future first years who will walk through Front Court each October.
The long isolation of COVID left MCR members eager to connect with new friends, and a buzzing atmosphere returned to College once again. We resume the usual MCR fare of Wednesday Grad Hall, themed Superhalls and insightful McMenemy seminars – all without Zoom.

The MCR committee channelled their excitement at finally being able to run in-person events again by organising a packed social calendar. Michaelmas term saw the MCR host a 7-foot animatronic dragon at a Harry Potter Superhall and singing Twelve Days of Christmas at the Bridgemas formal. Our Internal Events Officers, Sophie and Alexandrine, used these events to spotlight important issues: a raffle at the Bond-themed Superhall in Lent term raised £478 for the Red Cross Ukraine Appeal, and College generously matched the amount with a donation to the Council for At-Risk Academics. In February, the Gender Officers, Antonia and Jess, organised a week of events celebrating International Women’s Day. Activities included banner making for Reclaim the Night and an IWD formal where we celebrated iconic women and people of marginalised genders.

The Marshall McLuhan Symposium also returned for the first time since 2019. The Academic Officers, Craig and Jack, did not disappoint, organising an exciting programme of talks given by MCR members on the theme of ‘Shape’. Subjects ranged widely from austerity and gentrification by Joshua Paul, to SARS-CoV-2 by Antonia Netzli. Charles Gai’s talk on origami-like smart structures secured him first prize.

In keeping with the theme of return events, this year saw the return of the MCR summer Garden Party. For one afternoon at the end of May Week, live jazz bands and DJs briefly disturbed the tranquility of Wychfield. As the final MCR event of the year, it was a fitting way for many members to say goodbye to all the friends they had made throughout the year.

Looking ahead to the upcoming year, College will be welcoming a new Master. The MCR is very much looking forward to working with the new Master to progress the views of postgraduate students and make College an even friendlier, safer and more welcoming place.

We have a slight upheaval ahead; the MCR is being refurbished and we have to temporarily decamp to the Welfare Room – the site of the old College Bar. The MCR committee has been heavily involved in the redesign of the MCR and we shall return in a year’s time to the newly restored Blue and Red Room.

Finally, thank you to all the members of College who made this amazing year possible. I think the year showed the best of what Trinity Hall and the MCR have to offer, and we are incredibly grateful to the staff and Fellows for their efforts to make it happen. In particular, we wish to thank the Catering and Events teams who tirelessly helped us with all our events and formals, and were happy to fulfil all our last-minute wishes. I would also like to thank the wider MCR committee: it would not have been possible to have such a successful year without your consistent effort.
College Societies

Christian Union
Jed Beynon (2019)

The Trinity Hall Christian Union (THCU) is a society for anyone interested in finding out more about Jesus and Christianity, whether they’re a Christian or not. Following many terms of meeting online, this year was a chance for THCU to return to more normal events. Weekly prayer meetings on Fridays and time to look at a passage from the Bible and discuss it on Saturdays were a real joy. We looked at the impact that Jesus had when he spoke with people in the book of Luke, issues of mortality and meaning from the book of Ecclesiastes, and the spread of the early Church in the book of Acts. We were also able to organise some of our other normal events, such as leading a College Chapel service once a term and holding two text-a-toastie events, where students can ask any question about Christianity or God and receive a free toastie along with the answer from a THCU member. Many freshers joined THCU this year, and it was great to get to know them through different socials and eating together in Hall.

We were also able to get involved with the University Christian Union’s week of events, looking at what each of us is pursuing in life. Hundreds of people from across the University attended talks such as ‘What makes us worthy of human rights?’ and ‘How can I find freedom from fear?’. It was great to discuss such big topics with other students and talk about what Christianity says about what we’re searching for.

We’re so thankful for everything that God has done in THCU this year, and we’re looking forward to new reps Zac and Max leading us next year!

Hesperides Society
Matt Bessant (2019)

Bringing back the Hesperides Society has certainly been a highlight of my time at Trinity Hall. Two years ago, it was all but forgotten within the College walls, existing only in the memories of alumni, but in the time since it has seen a burst of literary and artistic activity. Whereas in the previous year this activity was restricted by the bounds of virtual interaction, in Easter term 2022 we were able to kickstart in-person events with an Inaugural Dinner.

The occasion was attended by both current undergraduates and Old Hesperideans, who came equipped with a plethora of anecdotes of the Society in its heyday. It was thus particularly fitting that the dinner took place in the Graham Storey Room, which takes its name from the Vice-Master who oversaw the Hesperides at that time. One such alumnus was the guest of honour, Michael Peppiatt (1961), who was President of the Hesperides in 1963 and who has since become one of Britain’s foremost art historians, curating exhibitions at some of the world’s most prestigious galleries. It was a pleasure to interview him alongside the Society’s supporting Fellow, Dr Jane Partner, and to learn more about his extraordinary career. It was equally a delight to see intergenerational discussion about literary and art-historical topics long ignored at Trinity Hall. Excitingly these topics will be foregrounded at the imminent College Arts Festival, at which the Hesperides will assume a prominent role under the leadership of the new presidents Daisy, Jesse and Anna, whom I trust will see the Hesperides flourish even further over the coming year.

The Society takes its name from the magnus opus of Trinity Hall alumnus Robert Herrick, in which he wrote that ‘times do shift, each thing his turn’ – indeed, in the Hesperides Society we see a ‘former thing’ born again, and I look forward to seeing the future successes of its ‘new’ incarnation.

Origami Society
Sumei Kinzelbach, 2021

The Trinity Hall Origami Society was founded at the beginning of Lent term 2022. In our weekly meetings we have folded more than 12 different designs by various origami artists. Our projects have covered a range of different styles, from animal figures to flower vases and even abstract tessellations, but origami animals have become our speciality. We used both video tutorials and conventional step-by-step folding instructions for our origami models and have definitely met our challenges with both media. I am looking forward to tackling crease patterns together in the coming terms. Crease patterns are essentially blueprints that provide a one-step connection from unfolded to finished figure, which will hopefully enable us to start making our own designs.
College Sports

Basketball
Calvin Hartley, 2019

This past year marked the inauguration of the Trinity Hall Basketball Society. In our goals of encouraging students to play and compete in the University college basketball league, I am delighted to say it has been a great success. With regular recreational sessions in the University Sports Centre throughout the winter, we were able to hold games and run drills with students throughout all years of the College including postgraduates. The dedication was sensational – students regularly cycled through wind and rain to train, despite the Cambridge workload.

A particular success in the basketball world of Trinity Hall was the establishment of a hoop on the tennis courts of Wychfield site, made possible by generous alumni donations. This fantastic new piece of equipment allows all Trinity Hall students to get involved in basketball and is especially useful in the summer weather of Easter term. The Basketball Society will continue to run indoor sessions, but with the addition of this hoop, which was utilised extensively last Easter term, basketball has never been easier to play at College.

Perhaps our greatest basketballing success this year was in the formation of our team and our entry into the college basketball league. Starting off in the bottom fifth division, we were able to secure promotion in both Michaelmas and Lent terms, moving us up to the third division after just two seasons (despite losses against our new arch-rivals Robinson). A particular highlight was Yigit Copuroglu’s buzzer-beating, game-winning shot in Lent term to secure a hard-fought victory.

We could not have asked for a better first year for the Trinity Hall Basketball Society, and moving forward we will have more recreational sessions, more team training and (hopefully) more breathtaking victories against our rival colleges. It is so easy to get involved – simply follow our page on Facebook and join in the fun!

Boat Club
Isobel Nicholl, 2019

After enduring lockdowns with Zoom circuits and coxes in facemasks, Trinity Hall Boat Club (THBC) and the rest of the College has been restored to its former glory – a sight we were immensely pleased to see. It was wonderful to see so many back on the river and the first set of May Bumps since 2019 was a particular highlight!

We have seen huge successes across the club, and I am infinitely proud of what we have achieved. An astounding number of new novices joined the Club and it was wonderful to see so many fresh faces on the Cam. The Women’s top novice boat spent Michaelmas dominating the Cam – and won Emma Sprouts at the end of November.

The Fairbairns were a wonderful display of THBC spirit, with ten Vils crews racing over the two days and both first boats finishing in the top ten.

In January, we held a camp in Cambridge, to help prepare for the Lent Bumps. We had five boats enter the Getting-On Race and with entries becoming increasingly competitive, we were very pleased to have three boats qualify – in addition to our two first boats. The women’s third boat, made up of an entirely novice crew, was the second of its kind to qualify for the Lents in THBC history and won the first ever set of THBC Women’s Third Boat Lent Blades! A further set of blades went to the Men’s second boat. We were the only club on the Cam to win two sets of blades in the Lents this year and it was wonderful to see the hard work of our lower boats rewarded.

The two first boats had a trickier Lent Bumps week, both finished in the top ten. The Men’s First Boat demonstrated some strong row overs and bumps against top crews. Following last minute crew changes due to injury, the Women’s First Boat (W1) put up an immense fight and narrowly missed out on blades on their final day, chasing Lady Margaret Boat Club down to a quarter of a length and holding them the length of the course.

W1 managed to get out to London for this year’s WeHoRR, which was a valuable experience. The thrill of the Tideway left us all a bit wet and almost seasick, but to finish 124th of over 300 crews is certainly something to be proud of!

As May Bumps had not been held since 2019, there were only three members in the club to have previously raced in the Mays. Despite this, our club showed up in full force with three boats on each side qualifying for the races – in the hot weather – and we were grateful for all the support from the tow path. Our Women’s First Boat finished the week with blades after bumping St Catharine’s, Queens’, Girton and Clare. This was the first set of THBC W1 May Blades since 1983 – and the only set to have ever been won by a Woman’s VIII! I was immensely proud of what our Club achieved in this year’s Mays, especially after so many months of disruption.

So, I want to extend the warmest of thanks to all alumni and supporters, and a huge thank you to all of our amazing coaches that give up so much of their time to help us and our community. Particularly special thanks go to Head Coach and Boatman, Paul Townsend, who has headed up all of our crews and coaches throughout this past season. Row Hall!

Cricket Club
Ioan Webber (2020)

Trinity Hall Cricket Club (THCC) has had another season of ups and downs with a team including many new faces this year. This included new leadership with two new co-captains stepping into the role following the departure of many of our senior players who graduated last summer.

After a few nets through the winter to get into the swing of things, we received our Cuppers draw, which saw us in a strong group with Selwyn, Robinson and Girton. In the first two fixtures, we, unfortunately, fell short of runs against Girton and Selwyn. However, we bounced back to finish strongly with a win in a rain-affected fixture against Robinson by a 10-wicket margin. This left us joint third in the group, which was not enough to progress to the further stages.

Following exams, we played a couple of further well-fought friendlies against Sidney Sussex and Pembroke, and an alumni game where we could welcome back some old faces for a great afternoon of cricket.

Unfortunately, we have to say goodbye to some of our most experienced campaigners this year. But we were also happy to see lots of new faces, and hope that with another year of experience under our belts we can push for more success in 2023.

New Thundercatz Ultimate Frisbee
Tom Lopez, 2020, Gonville and Caius

The New Thundercatz Ultimate Frisbee team is the college league team for Trinity Hall, St Catharine’s, Gonville and Caius, Fitzwilliam, Lucy Cavendish and St Edmund’s colleges. We emphasise cultivating good team spirit and being inclusive of players of all levels. We’ve significantly grown in numbers and skill over the last couple of years. Two years ago, the whole team comprised only six players and was placed at the bottom of Division 2. This past year, we grew to 25 regular players and were placed second in Division 1 in Michaelmas and Lent. In Easter, we were placed first in Division for the first time ever, winning all five of our games.

Other than developing our team’s technical skills through games and training, we also regularly organise socials such as formals, brunches and barbecues to build team spirit off the pitch. We hope to continue this growth in performance and team numbers in the coming years.

Mixed Netball
Rajiv Guha (2019) and Ella Wood (2020)

It has been a wonderful year for the Trinity Hall Zebras (our dearly named black-and-white themed mixed netball team!). Following a couple of COVID-disrupted years, it has been a joy to see mixed netball come back to life, with the league and cuppers returning. The year had many highlights including us successfully retaining our place in Division 1 of the league twice, with our play progressing in leaps and bounds. It’s fair to say the dedication and enthusiasm of our amazing team has done College proud!

We opened the Michaelmas season with a 27-1 defeat to Jesus (the previous league winners), but thankfully bounced back, with the help of many new recruits and some familiar faces back on the court. We narrowly retained our place in the top division after winning matches against St Edmund’s and St John’s in the latter stages of term.

Swimming and Water Polo Club
Oliver Bramley, 2019

The Cambridge University Swimming and Water Polo Club (CUSWPC) enjoyed an incredibly successful year, with outstanding performances in our Varsity events against Oxford, and in regional competitions.

CUSWPC’s swimming side performed strongly during the 127th Blues Swimming Varsity, and came in close behind Oxford, with several notable performances. The CUSWPC 200m IM record was broken, with a new time of 2:22.15, and the women’s side finished a considerable two seconds faster than their opponents in the 100m backstroke. Another highlight was CUSWPC’s performance in the 4x100 free, which broke club records, and saw both sides soundly outperform Oxford. The Seconds team also pulled out an incredible performance in February against Oxford, and remained strong throughout the competition, with several personal best times set. Several Blues swimmers also competed with great success in the Swim England National Summer Meet 2022.

The water polo side also enjoyed a successful year and performed strongly in BUCS (British Universities and Colleges Sport). The women’s side comfortably beat Imperial 29-2 and Birmingham, 12-11, whilst the men’s side narrowly missed out on victory against Warwick, 11-10, and Loughborough, 10-9. Our water polo teams fought hard in Varsity, but missed out to Oxford, who played incredibly well and won against both the men’s and women’s teams.

CUSWPC as a whole participated in numerous charity events over the past year, raising money for The Red Cross effort in Ukraine and Save the Children. Our Ukraine fundraiser took the form of a 24-hour swimathon, held at Girton’s indoor pool, from which we raised an incredible £2,510. For our Save the Children event, we put aside years of rivalry and collaborated with Oxford University Swimming Club for a 100x100m relay, during which one hundred swimmers from both Clubs swam 100m, raising £2,510. We are greatly indebted to all who selflessly donated to these causes, and who made these events possible.

CUSWPC has welcomed many new faces from Trinity Hall over the last year, and we are incredibly excited to train and compete with all our new incoming members.

Andrew Arthur released three commercial recordings in the past 12 months. The first was a selection of Mozart violin and piano sonatas (K.301, K.304-5 and K. 454) with Peter Hanson on violin and Andrew Arthur on fortepiano which was released on Resonus Classics (RES10281). The second was a selection of choral and instrumental works by Gibbons, Tomkins and Weekles recorded by the Chapel Choir with Newe Vialles and the Orpheus Britannicus Vocal Consort, directed by Andrew. This recording was also released on Resonus Classics (RES10295). The third was a recording of four harpsichord concertos written by J.S. Bach (BWV 1052, 1054, 1055 and 1058) with Andrew Arthur directing and playing harpsichord accompanied by the Hanover Band. This recording was released on Signum Classics (SIGD710).

Dr Ristuccia is a University Senior Research Associate in Applied Economics.

He works on production technology and economic growth during the 20th century, with particular reference to the inter-war period and the Second World War. His focus is comparative and covers industrial development in the US, Japan, the UK, Germany, France and Italy. His teaching focuses on Germany and on international financial instability in the inter-war period, and on the economics of dictatorships.

If you were to sit, on a summer evening, next to the library, by the river, you would inevitably hear the young guides’ explanations of the putative foundation of Trinity Hall being distractedly shouted, while pushing a punting pole, to inattentive groups of tourists who would rather enjoy their nautical drinks in the sun undisturbed by the tedium of history. According to this vulgata, Bishop William Bateman of Norwich founded Trinity Hall to provide new clergymen to the ranks of the Church in England, ranks that had been severely depleted by the Plague in 1349. And yet it is difficult to see how the foundation of a small College of seven to ten Scholars of Canon Law and ten to thirteen Scholars of Civil Law would have done much to address the problems of a clergy that had probably lost around two thirds of its members. Even if we add the re-foundation by Bateman of Gonville's Hall (or the Hall of the Annunciation of Our Lady) in the same years the numbers would have changed very little.

Trinity Hall was founded to provide clerics versed in either or both Civil and Canonical law. Why did the Church need legally trained clergy? To provide administrators to the civilian bureaucracy; to replenish the ranks of both Church and Crown justice; and to administer and defend the vast and complex economic interests of the East Anglian Church. Bateman himself received his training in both Canonical and Civil law in Cambridge. So, it is not... entirely surprising that when Bateman rewrote the statutes of the College of his deceased friend de Gonville he should make the legal training of the clergy the central purpose of the College (adding to it the unheard of, but not entirely surprising provision given that this is immediately after the Black Death, that Gonville College should also provide clergy properly trained in medicine).

We know little about Bishop Bateman himself as we have little direct evidence on his views and motivations apart from a few shreds of information coming from his prominent position as a member of the Clergy. He was a Bishop of Norwich presiding over all of East Anglia, the richest and most populous diocese in England. He was a bishop who strenuously defended his own rights over his diocese’s vast resources from the perils of encroachment of other Church institutions; of the Crown and its courts; and of local potentates. We know him as an Auditor of the Papal Palace in Avignon (a judicial position). We also know him as an ambassador at the Papal Court in Avignon for the English Crown, but also, unusually, as a Nuncio for the Pope at the English Royal Court. But we know nothing from him directly. And yet here I will try to answer these very questions: what motivated Bishop Bateman to set up his college in Cambridge? Why during this most catastrophic plague? Do we really owe our own existence as an institution to this very inauspicious beginning? In summary, why are we here?

The Revd Professor David Fergusson
OBE FBA FRSE

The Revd Professor Fergusson studied philosophy and theology in Glasgow, Edinburgh and Oxford.

He is currently Regius Professorship of Divinity at the University of Cambridge, having been Professor of Systematic Theology in the University of Aberdeen (1990–2000) and Professor of Divinity in the University of Edinburgh (2000–2021). He serves as Dean of the Chapel Royal in Scotland and Dean of the Order of the Thistle. He is also a Fellow of the Royal Society of Edinburgh (2004) and a Fellow of the British Academy (2013). He has worked across a range of subjects in historical and contemporary theology.

‘Home is where one starts from’ says T S Eliot in East Coker, one of the Four Quartets. That seems a reasonable assumption, though for most of us a home is much more than that. Not only a point of departure, home is a place of return and arrival, even of longing and hope. The expression ‘homeward bound’ has a reassuring feel; so does ‘keep the home fires burning’, the title of Ivor Novello’s best known song from the First World War.

There’s a silver lining Through the dark clouds shining, Turn the dark cloud inside out Till the boys come home.

And note how estate agents use the deeper resonances of ‘home’ to market the houses they sell. Homes that match. Where dreams come home. Be Home, which seems to be missing something but perhaps that’s the point.

The reading from Deuteronomy 8 speaks of a people in the wilderness seeking a homeland, a place flowing with milk and honey. But their prosperity depends not just on arrival at their destination but on maintaining a set of laws that will order their common and religious life. These function like house rules for their welfare and the right administration of their affairs. Often, they fail to adhere to it. In the New Testament passage which deals with disunity and dissension, Paul employs the metaphor of a building for the church. It will stand as long it is built on the right foundation, namely Christ. Later Paul compares the church to a body, the health of which depends on the proper functioning of all its parts. Today as we mark Founder’s Day at Trinity Hall, we might ponder the ways in which a college offers a home to those who live and work in it.

The functions of an institution of learning seem obvious – the facilitation of research, teaching, learning and assessment, resulting in the production of graduates at different levels across a range of subjects. But when we consider what actually happens over and above all this, we quickly realise that a college has a purpose that is much more than this functional description might suggest. The sharing of meals, participation in sports clubs, social activities, and weekly worship, the stewardship of libraries, gardens, wine cellars and buildings, the maintenance of relations with former students, and that wider commitment to ensuring that knowledge is useful, enriching and just in its acquisition and application – all of this absorbs our attention and energies year on year.

The campaign for the University and Colleges of Cambridge, the largest in Cambridge’s history, has closed after surpassing its target. From Europe to Antarctica, the campaign has successfully turned philanthropy into impact, reaching every continent.

“I am sincerely grateful to the community of donors who have shown their commitment to helping some of the brightest minds not only get to Cambridge and thrive here, but also to create more world-changing ideas,” said emeritus Vice-Chancellor Professor Stephen J Toope, who led the University during the last five years of the campaign. “We can all take pride in the campaign’s remarkable achievements.”

The campaign launched publicly in 2015 during Professor Sir Leszek Borysiewicz’s tenure as Vice-Chancellor, with £500 million already raised. More than 80,000 alumni donated to the University and Colleges throughout the campaign, as well as committing thousands of volunteer hours to Cambridge. 400 academic-related posts received philanthropic support in subjects ranging from crop science to climate law. And Cambridge’s world-leading research in areas like the early detection of cancer; public policy and rethinking the measures of economic progress; and understanding the causes of neurodegenerative diseases like Alzheimer’s and Parkinson’s have all been advanced as a result of the campaign.

Expanding student support

Enhanced financial support for undergraduate and postgraduate students was one of the key objectives of the campaign.

For undergraduates, programmes like Get in Cambridge and Stormzy scholarships mean that students from historically underrepresented groups have fewer barriers to studying at Cambridge than ever before.

For postgraduates, scholarships like the Harding Distinguished Postgraduate Scholars, Cambridge Opportunity Scholarships and Wolfson Postgraduate Scholars in the Humanities ensure that Cambridge remains attractive and more financially accessible to a global academic community.
Extracurricular activities and wellbeing and mental health provision are essential to a well-rounded student experience. New facilities and programmatic support for athletic performance ensure a rich sporting experience. The Colleges and University continue to increase support for student mental health and wellbeing, bolstered by philanthropic investment.

Transforming the landscape

The campaign has accelerated the transformation of Cambridge’s skyline.

The Ray Dolby Centre will become the home for the Department of Physics in the new Cavendish Laboratory. It will be further enhanced by a new fund for Excellence in Physics, ensuring that talented physicists from around the world, from postdocs to professors, will be able to lead research that could radically change our understanding of the universe.

The Jeffrey Cheah Biomedical Centre is at the heart of the Cambridge Biomedical Campus, where vital research is happening at the Milner Therapeutics Institute and the Cambridge Institute of Therapeutic Immunology and Infectious Disease (CITIID).

In central Cambridge’s New Museums Site, the Museum of Zoology and the Arup building have been revitalised through forward-thinking renovations. Now known as the David Attenborough building, it houses the Cambridge Conservation Initiative and the Museum of Zoology.

And the city centre’s old telephone exchange on Regent Street has become the new home for the Cambridge Institute for Sustainability Leadership, following an extensive renovation focused on making it an environmentally sustainable building.

Responding to global challenges

Now more than ever, our work takes place on a global scale. And the campaign expanded its focus to respond to emerging global challenges.

The Cambridge Zero initiative was launched in 2019 to harness the University’s expertise in response to the climate crisis and has already begun to attract philanthropic support.

Philanthropy offered ways for Cambridge to respond to global events such as the COVID pandemic and the war in Ukraine. Many donors supported COVID research and student hardship funding as well as helping those affected by war, including medical students from Kharkiv, Ukraine who secured placements in Cambridge.

Looking to the future

Dr Anthony Freeling, Acting Vice-Chancellor, said, “The Collegiate University has benefited from philanthropy in countless ways over the course of the campaign and fundraising at Cambridge has never been in a stronger position. All those involved across the Colleges and University should be proud of what they have helped achieve in the campaign.”

While remarkable progress has been made as a result of Dear World... Yours, Cambridge, our world faces further significant challenges. From finding and stopping cancer sooner and halting climate change, to increasing student support and improving the care of sick children, to name but a few ongoing priorities, philanthropy will continue to play a vital role in enabling Cambridge to respond.

Every gift to Trinity Hall counted towards the Dear World campaign total. Over the course of the campaign, Trinity Hall raised £30 million.
The Trinity Hall community consists of 8,300 members across 100 different countries. We highlight news from some of our alumni and from the Trinity Hall Association.

The Trinity Hall Association Secretary’s Report

Interesting venues and hugely enjoyable occasions

The THA Committee has held all its scheduled meetings and appreciated being able to do so in person in 2022. Business has focused in particular on relations and communication with the College, alumni and our student body. Questions regarding the THA were formulated for the Alumni Survey conducted recently; feedback, which is always much encouraged, should help us to review and refine our governance and purpose. Finance and litigation are ongoing issues which we endeavour to handle appropriately.

The framework of the THA Volunteer Awards, an important part of our engagement with the student community, is under review. The benefits are already evident of widening access and scope in terms of flexibility, location, duration and timing, and funding level. Restrictions arising from COVID and travel are still apparent. Recently three awards have been approved and funded. We welcome the recipients’ reports on their experiences in due course.

The easing of COVID restrictions has allowed us to resume an events programme with, so far, two Regional Dinners. These aim to offer an interesting venue and are undoubtedly hugely enjoyable occasions for alumni and their guests from the region and also those attracted from further afield. Invariably a wide range of matriculation years is represented. The first dinner, in November 2021, at Riddle’s Court, a beautifully restored late 16th-century merchant’s house in Edinburgh, provided a superb dining experience. Dr Clare Jackson, Senior Tutor, gave a fascinating talk on the intriguing dynastic and diplomatic issues of the King James VI period in which the house had featured.

In March 2022 we held a Regional Dinner in the Shakespeare Memorial Library in the Library of Birmingham, which juxtaposed strikingly with the modern Book Rotunda where we enjoyed a superb meal. We were delighted that the Vice-Master was able to join us. Again, the dinner was preceded by a wonderful talk in which Dr Abigail Rokison-Woodall (2003) covered the history of the library and its extensive collections. Looking forward, a regional event in the Bristol/Bath area in the spring/summer of 2023 is being investigated. Feedback and suggestions for events are welcomed.

The year concluded in College on Saturday 24 September with a busy programme. First, there was a wide-ranging, very well-informed and fascinating panel discussion on the challenges of good leadership in times of misinformation, facilitated by THA President Gillian Karran-Cumberlege (1982) with panel members Chris Blackhurst (1979), Helen Stevenson (1979) and Sue Whalley (1984). This well-attended event concluded with excellent questions from the audience. The AGM that followed was attended by 28 members in person and was accessible online for the first time. Gillian Karran-Cumberlege (1982) was re-elected President, Cortland Fransella (1987) was re-elected to the Committee, whilst co-opted members Emily Bosley (2012) and Lee Evans (2010) were introduced.

Finally, the Annual Dinner was attended by 115 members and guests, representing seven decades of matriculation, who enjoyed wonderful food and wine, excellent service and great company. It was a lovely occasion for the new Master, Mary Hockaday (1981) to attend with the alumni community.

We remain indebted to all the staff of the Alumni & Development Office for their constant support.

There are lots of exciting events coming up, giving you the opportunity to catch up with old friends at reunions, connect with other alumni overseas, and experience new and interesting venues across the UK. www.trinhall.cam.ac.uk/events

As a member of Trinity Hall, you can take advantage of the College’s alumni benefits. These include use of guest rooms in College, use of College sports facilities, hire of College punts and High Table dining rights. Your dining rights entitle you to dine in Hall up to three times a year on Thursdays or Saturdays during Full term with no charge for food or wine. Book by completing the online form on the website, email the Butler on butler@trinhall.cam.ac.uk or call +44 (0)1223 766333.

University Alumni Benefits

All alumni who matriculated at Cambridge are entitled to a CAMCard from the University Development & Alumni Relations Office. The CAMCard gives you a range of benefits including free entrance to the colleges, membership of the University Centre and discounts in various shops and hotels in Cambridge.

Alumni are also eligible for discounts at the University of Cambridge Sports Centre (www.sport.cam.ac.uk) and can apply for access to the University Library and use of the University Careers Service.
